Schnabel in Piano Recital at Monterey

Arthur Schnabel, famous Austrian pianist, is to be heard in recital at the Monterey Theatre on Wednesday evening, February 21. This is the fourth of the artists' concert series of Monterey.

A bit of information concerning Schnabel will be of interest. He was born in Lipnik, Carinthia, on April 17, 1882. He revealed extraordinary talent at a very early age, and when six years old was accepted as a pupil by Leschetitzski. At the age of 10 he mastered technique so far that his teacher permitted him to appear in public.

His musical career from that day until the present has been one of steady growth in artistic stature. His recital tours of Europe rapidly acquired for him a solid reputation as a master pianist and a musician of deep culture. He has appeared innumerable times as soloist with orchestras conducted by Strauss, Nikisch, Mahler, Weingartner, Muck, Bodanski and Mengelberg.

Regarded by some critics as one of the foremost interpreters of Brahms and Beethoven, his brilliant technique has won for him numerous admirers as a Liszt player, while his poetic temperament finds congenial outlet in the romantic works of Chopin, Schumann and Schubert.

As a player of chamber music he has a reputation of the first rank. For many seasons he gave a regular series of recitals with Karl Flesch, the violinist, in Berlin. In 1912 he organized a trio with A. Wittenberg and Anton Hekking. When this was disbanded he formed another trio with Flesch and Jean Gerardy. In addition to tours with his own trios, he frequently appeared as guest artist with European chamber music organizations.

Legion Gets Camp Site

Through the generosity of Argyll Campbell, the Monterey County Council of the American Legion has come into possession of a fine piece of land in Palo Colorado Canyon, several miles south of Carmel, on the coast road.

It is the intention of the Council to make of the gift an outing place for the boys, and to provide such accomodations as may be necessary for the numbers who are convalescing from illness.

Numerous redwood trees are growing on the land and a space will be cleared to erect a log cabin of the trees which will be cut down. The boys will build it themselves.

From all parts of the county will come week-end and longer period camping and fishing parties.

Monterey county is probably the first in the state to have and own such an institution.

Treasurer Will Pay

Judge J. A. Bardin has rendered judgment for the plaintiff in the suit of the Berger Manufacturing Co. against County Treasurer James Taylor, involving the payment of a claim for lockers furnished the Salinas Union High school.

Whom the Whole World Honors

Next Monday is the 115th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. We celebrate this event because he was not only a great American, but because he was a great world figure as well.

Because he was one of our greatest Presidents, the country has preserved his name and his fame by erecting an imposing memorial in the national capital.

Because he was intellectually great, the work of his pen still lives in our educational institutions, where his speeches are studied as examples of the finest and purest of English prose. Because of his updying patriotism, he is revered; because of his noble manhood, he is respected; because of his remarkable attainments, he is admired; but because of his sense of humor, he is beloved, and endeared to the hearts of his countrymen as a man, who, with all his greatness, was human enough to tell a joke or to laugh at one.

Indeed, Lincoln could tell good jokes, and he seemed to have an inexhaustible supply at his command. There are volumes of them now published which prove amusing and profitable reading matter. But these "jokes" consisted of more than mere comedy. They were generally told for some purpose—to clinch an argument, prove a statement, or point out a moral.

In many a trying crisis he showed himself to be master of the situation by relating a humorous anecdote that helped to carry his point and swing sentiment in favor of the cause he espoused. Under stress of emotion or excitement, he relieved the strain of his nerves by giving vent to his irresistible sense of humor in telling a story. When he was waiting for the returns from the Republican convention in Chicago in 1860, he was under great nervous tension, but he amused himself and entertained the staff of the Springfield Journal by telling one good one after another, until he received the telegram announcing his nomination.

There was never a time, his biographers claim, when Abe Lincoln was too grave or too melancholy to fail to see the humor of a situation. Even at times when he seemed most care-worn and weighed down by the great problems and responsibilities with which he was struggling, he would suddenly chuckle to himself, a twinkle would come into his eyes, and he was "reminded" of some anecdote that applied to the case in question.

On one occasion it is told of how a very sad and solemn member of Congress paid a visit to President Lincoln at the White House during one of the darkest periods of the Civil War. The member seemed deeply depressed. So did the President, who, nevertheless, found his sense of humor sufficiently active to think of a funny story. He began to tell it when he was interrupted by the member, who said he was there on important national business and not to hear funny stories.

Mr. Lincoln, it is recorded, looked hurt, the twinkle departed from his eye, but he motioned the member to a chair, and said, "Sit down, sit down, and let me explain. I have the very highest respect for you, and a regard not much less than your own, I guess, for the nation at large; but if I didn't get a chance to laugh sometimes I'd die in my tracks. I can be as serious as you are, but not all the time. Which reminds me—" and he concluded with the story he had begun.

There were others, too, who did not seem to understand that Lincoln's sense of humor was not only a strong stimulant for him in times of stress, but that it was also a powerful weapon with which he attacked his opponent or defended his cause.

Cator-Newberry's "Beggar of Bagdad" Going on at San Jose

In last week's Pine Cone was noted the departure of Perry Newberry and Tom Cator for San Jose. They reached their destination. Luther Meyer of the San Jose News wrote an article about our two eminent citizens. Here it is:

"Perry Newberry, artist and playwrite and mayor of Carmel, and Thomas Vincent Cator, musical composer extraordinary and former member of the faculty of the College of Pacific conservatory of music, are today in San Jose dangling a tempting offer before the San Jose Women's club, offering them an opportunity to give the premier production of a sparkling new opera bouffe by these two Carmel men, entitled 'The Beggar of Bagdad.'

"The decision on the matter of producing the Oriental opera bouffe is to be made by the Women's club this afternoon. A select audience of members of the club yesterday afternoon gathered in the Women's club house and in rapt attention followed Newberry through the reading of the libretto and Cator through a presentation of the snappy musical themes.

"'The Beggar of Bagdad' will have its premier here late in April, beyond all doubt. While this brainchild of the noted Carmel men is but a few months old, Ferris Hartman and Paul Steindorff, the San Francisco comic kings, have evidenced their wish to take it and put it over on the New York stage.

"The book is by Perry Newberry, the music by Thomas Cator, and the lyrics of the sparkling and refreshing piece are by Newberry and Marie Wardell.

"The story interweaves the two tales of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp, and Cinderella and the slipper. The scene is laid in Bagdad, and harem beauties in abundance throng the stage. Cinderella and Aladdin stage a wonder romance.

"Newberry himself may agree to take one of the leading comedy roles.

"Newberry is prehaps better known to San Joseans by his long fight to keep Carmel natural and artistic. The Carmel fight between art and modernism, in which Perry espoused the cause of art, has filled the papers all over the country, and despite many efforts to shake off the iron rule of art, as represented by Mayor Perry Newberry, he still remains in command of the situation.

Admits Paving Lots

"'The moderns have made some advances,' Newberry admitted today. 'They paved our main business street with concrete—it's drying now. That's Ocean avenue and extends from the highway to the beach, past the hotel.

"'As for the other streets, they are even worse—and more artistic—than usual, if anything.' Perry grinned broadly.

"'Yes, every council meeting is a fight. If we don't have a fight in the council itself, we can be sure that there will be a crowd of from 50 to 100 people outside at every council meeting, all bitterly opposing some move, or with equal bitterness favoring it.

Whole Town Fights

"'The whole town gets up and fights over anything and everything affecting the artistic life of the community. You can start a riot by suggesting that Shakespeare should or should not be played in the Forest theatre, or you can start a real war by saying that Mr. So-and-so is or is not a greater director than Garnet Holme.

"'Someone is always trying to introduce ordinances in council, according to model ordinances suggested by the League of California Municipalities. But we don't want that kind. If another town has an ordinance of a certain kind, it's just what we don't want.

Carmel Prefers Shack

"'Carmel is different. It is unique. Carmel is like no other place on earth and we want to keep it so.

"For example, building ordinances that would be needed elsewhere are not wanted here. A little $75 shack—if it's right—is a lot better for Carmel than a big $75,000 house that doesn't fit.

"'The population of Carmel is growing by leaps and bounds. Many people are being attracted here by the unique surroundings, and then kick about the very conditions that they wanted.' Newberry laughed and Cator across the breakfast table, chimed in with his chuckles.

Search-Moss Joint Concert Next Monday

Next Monday evening, February 12th, Lincoln's Birthday, at the Arts and Crafts Hall, Frederick Preston Search, our cello soloist and the San Francisco pianist, Frank Moss will appear in a joint recital and a large audience will be there to hear these two American artists who have been preparing this Carmel program for several months.

In honor of Lincoln's birthday, Mr. Moss will play a sonata by the lamented American composer, Charles T. Griffes, who passed away still a young man and was one of the most original, inspired and gifted composers we have ever had. Mr. Search tells us that this sonata will appeal to us by its hazy and ethereal harmonies and we all wish we could hear it played two or three times. Search said the first time he heard it he could not appreciate its great beauty, the melodies are convincing at once but the harmonies are new to us, bordering on the Chinese scales, even though not as daring as the modernists write, and at each repeated hearing of this work we realize a deeper understanding of this beautiful dream.

Mr. Search has as yet been unable to find an important composition in the larger forms for cello by an American composer, but he will offer us a fine novelty, a Konzerstueck byDohnanyi, which has never been played in America before, although it was composed at least twelve years ago. This work is an inspiration of clear melody writing with pure harmonies and offers no bizarre effects.

The program will open with the grand and glorious, colossal Sonata in F Major for cello and piano by Richard Strauss. Those knowing the intricate scores of the Strauss operas will be delighted by the bold, clear, refreshing melodies in this sonata.

Attend this concert to hear a wonderful program and help share expense of purchasing the new concert piano for our Arts and Crafts Hall. Mr. Search has promised to give a generous portion of the receipts to the piano fund.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Mrs. Emma Abell, sister of Miss Mary E. Mower and mother of Lucy Abell, well known here, died recently at her Oakland home, of pneumonia.

Frederick R. Bechdolt left early in the week for Sacramento. Before returning to Carmel he will spend a few days in Berkeley, looking up data at the University of California library.

For several months at least Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Remsen will not be of and in Carmel. The versatile "Rem" has accepted a job as director of the so called community theatre in Santa Barbara.

Miss Ruth Mantz, English, and Miss Clara Dickson, physical training, teachers in the Monterey high school, will reside in Carmel. They are occupying the Gray Goose cottage.

In Carmel for a brief visit are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dubois of Brussels, Belgium. Mr Dubois is a violinist and concertmeister of the Chicago Opera Company. They are in the Corrigan house.

Carmel students in the Monterey Union High School have attained a proud record in the last quarter's work. Report cards just issued show that the following pupils have made all A's and B's in their studies: Dorothy Cone, Manuel Pereira, Maurice Stoney, David Prince, Arline Payne, Phyllis Overstreet, Christine Otis, Margaret Clute, Fletcher Dutton and Oscar Geun.

Building Notes

The residence of C. N. Offley in Carmel Woods is completed, thus adding another to the attractive dwellings built by L. E. Gottfried.

Mr. and Gene Byrnes are looking forward to early occupancy of the recently altered and enlarged former Foster place. They are much pleased with the work of Contractor M. J. Murphy.

The beautiful new Italian villa of the William Watts, situated down the coast, below Highlands Inn, and which was designed and built by DeWitt Appleton, is nearing completion.

In addition to work on his own two story building on Dolores street, near the postoffice, Contractor Percy Parkes is erecting a four-room frame house on Torres street for J. Matterni, and is making improvements on the Eighth avenue Seideneck cottage.

Mary M. Phelps, sister of Mrs. Argyll Campbell, head of the English department of the San Jose high school, has decided to build on her lot on San Carlos, between Twelfth and Thirteenth. M. J. Murphy is the contractor.

The Pine Cone has a well equipped job printing plant.

Thorne Taylor Dies in San Francisco

Thorne Taylor, war veteran, athlete, business man, is dead, having passed away in a San Francisco hospital after a brief illness. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Deceased was the son of Judge and Mrs. Thomas Taylor of Chicago and Carmel. Only a few months ago he was married here to Miss Marian Boke.

Thorne Taylor was born in Chicago thirty-one years ago. At the time of his death he was a valued employe of a San Francisco shipping firm. During the world war he served four years in the aviation service, attaining the rank of captain.

Shirley Mason in Leading Role of "The Eleventh Hour," Now Being Filmed at the Highlands

The picture now being filmed near Carmel Highlands by the Fox Film Company is entitled "The Eleventh Hour." The picture director is Bernard Durning and the business affairs are in the hands of James B. Chapin. Actors who are taking the various roles are Shirley Mason, Buck Jones, Allan Hale, Walter McGrail, Richard Tucker, Edward Martindale, June Elvige, Harvey Clark and Fred Kelsey, all of whom are domiciled at Highlands Inn.

Carmel Candidate Is in the Running

Daisy F. Bostick, the "Pine Nut," seems to be well in the lead for the prize automobile offered in the Peninsula Herald subscription contest. Her Carmel friends are rallying to the standard loyally, for is it not the ruts and humps on this side of the hill that have reduced her once beautiful blue Rolls-Royce to a loud-sounding creature, racked hither and thither, and familiarly known as "Elizabeth." Don't vote for McNutt, vote for Pine Nut.

Value of Trees to the City Beautiful

"Every tree is a miracle," said Henry Turner Baily, director of the Cleveland School of Art, in a recent lecture.

Yet men ruthlessly destroy these miracles, with little thought of their meaning.

Tress are a city's entire claim to natural beauty. Bare soil is desolate soil. A treeless city is a desolate city. A "city of homes" is that because its houses cluster under the comforting shelter of trees.

Of course the woodland must give way before the metropolis. Down town areas will be treeless. The American city does not favor a tree-grown district. But home areas need not be devastated.

There is sentimental reason, at least, for preserving trees "that have grown old more gracefully than most people," as Director Bailey says, "trees that bear in the body the marks of lifelong experience and become an inspiration to all those who know and love them."

For such trees a walk may be swerved aside; a drive may curve away a bit; a new home may be placed forward or back to give it room.

The practical value of a city tree may be questioned. Beauty is there. And real urban beauty is confined to the smaller cities. A metropolis is never as picturesque, as restful, as beautiful, because a metropolis does not maintain tree growth. But parts of the metropolis—the home sections—may preserve the pastoral peace of the village if they want.

So, the city tree means the difference between sheltered, shaded homes and sun-baked habitations. Citizens may well think twice before destroying the patient work of nature, of 50 or 100 years.

Memorial Tablet is Suggested for Artist

The art lovers of the bay region have during the past week refreshed their memories in the work of Sydney Yard at the Codornices club house in Berkeley. This retrospective exhibit of one of California's best loved painter's work was made possible through the efforts of Mrs. Elinor Carlyle Chairman of the art committee of this club. Forty-six works were loaned.

The display was a creditable one and representative and diversified. The attendance was good. Mrs. C. C. Judson, daughter of the artist, was present daily. Prof. C. C. Judson made the address at the opening reception.

As one discerned how keen the interest of the public still is in Mr. Yard, although he passed away fourteen years ago, one wonders that no attempt has been made by the people of Carmel, where Mr. Yard had his last studio, to place a memorial tablet to him in Arts and Crafts hall, an institution in which he was deeply interested.

Cator-Newberry's "Beggar of Bagdad" Goes on at San Jose

"'These fellows build a house and a garage. They see a tree out in front that keeps them from having a straight line to their garage in the orthodox and conventional manner. Then they want to chop it down. I tell them they can't. "Suppose we chop it down anyway," they answer. And I tell 'em that I'll send 'em to jail as long as the law allows if they do. Then they don't.

Crooked Streets

"'We have quite a fight to keep Carmel near to what nature made it. We want to get away from straight lines. We had several surveyors working out a new street. Finally one said, "I can't get that through without taking out more than six or eight trees." I told him we ought to put it through without taking out any. I went out with him and we wabbled between the trees making the road 14 feet wide here and 30 feet wide there, but we didn't have to take out any of the trees. Believe me, we love the trees in Carmel, and we send men to jail for even cutting off branches.'

"About this time the eggs and bacon were brought on the breakfast table and Cator and Newberry tore into the chow. 'When Perry was in France with the "Y," ' launched out Cator, 'on one trip up near the front he was famished. He dropped into a little shop and asked for fried eggs. Perry could not talk a word of French. The woman running the little eating place finally understood what he wanted, and then asked how many eggs he wanted.

"'Perry thought she was asking what time it was. He looked at his wrist watch and pointed to the figure eight, and at the same telling the woman that it was 8 o'clock. She promptly brought him in eight fried eggs. And Perry ate them all.'

Was Bum Artist

"The conversation turned rather abruptly to Newberry's early career, when he mentioned the fact that he had been employed on the San Francisco Examiner in the 90's. The reporter had little trouble in persuading him to tell more, which brought forth a funny story of his brief career on that paper.

"'I came out in 1897,' said Newberry, 'but I didn't stay there long. They hired me as an artist. I guess I always was a bum artist and there were plenty of things that they could have fired me for. One day, however, they wanted me to draw a classical Greek figure. I did the job, turning out a beautiful figure, except for the feet. I had the anatomy mixed up, and I put the big toes on the outside of the feet, and the little ones on the inside. That ended my career as artist for the Examiner. I came to San Jose and was artist for a paper here for a while after that.

"'Now about every month or two some modern starts a move to recall me, as mayor, but its never gone through yet. Once they got as far as sending a petition around, but they found I was right on the proposition I was bucking and dropped the whole business cold.

"'It's a great life we lead in Carmel. You might come down and try it.'"

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

On February 9, 1773, William Henry Harrison was born in Charles City, Virginia. He was elected President in 1840 on the Whig ticket.

Bootleggers and other law-breakers in this vicinity are learning that Sheriff W. A. Oyer and District Attorney Albert Warth are not to be trifled with. They know the law and how to enforce it.

HEALTHY ADOLESCENCE

On the first page of this issue, on the date line, appears Volume IX, No. 1. That means that the Pine Cone has completed eight years of publication.

It means a great deal more than that. For eight years it has been profitable materially, artistically and serviceably to publish weekly a history of current events of Carmel and of some things not of Carmel but in and about which local residents are interested.

It means that the publication enters into its ninth year of existence with the owners encouraged and determined to make it the best production year it has yet enjoyed. This cannot be done, however, without the moral and financial support of the Pine Cone subscribers and advertisers, which has always been its chief stock in trade.

We thank you.

ROADWAY REMINDERS

The establishment of the Victory Highway, national memorial transcontinental motor highway from New York to San Francisco, is gaining strength with the plan of erecting boundary markers on the highway at the borders of all counties, bearing memorial tablets inscribed to the memory of the men and women who were residents of these counties and who gave their lives during the World War.

The first movement toward the erection of the markers was taken in Shawnee county, Kansas, where the women are raising a fund for the erection of the memorial tablets inscribed to the men and women of that county who died during the war.

It is the belief of the national officials of the Victory Highway association that each county will follow the lead of those already starting the work, and that eventually the memorial roadway will be bordered throughout its length with enduring monuments of stone and bronze.

Coueism and Christian Science Dissimilar

In a letter to a San Jose newspaper the controversy as to the similarity or lack of similarity of Coueism and Christian Science is set forth at length. The communication is as follows:

"M. Coue is mistaken when he asserts in a telegraphic dispatch published in your columns of Jan. 23, that 'the underlying principle of Christian Science and my theory is the same, auto-suggestion and the power of the imagination over the flesh.'

"Christian Science healing is based on the teachings of Christ Jesus, the greatest physician whom the world has ever known. These teachings are directly opposite to any system which includes will power or the human mind as a factor in its healing work.

"Auto-suggestion, hypnotism, mesmerism and faith cure are each a form of will power and their only comparison to Christian Science is by way of contrast. Those who practice those systems are denied admission to membership in the Christian Science (church by-laws, p. 53).

"Unlike M. Coue, Christian Science does explain all the works and miracles of Jesus. Were not these miracles the result of Jesus' understanding of spiritual law which annulled the so-called material law? The teachings of the Master are applicable to every condition or situation confronting mankind, and obviously the principle of such a teaching must be infinite Mind of God.

"Auto-suggestion, or suggestion of any kind, is incapable of such boundless scope. Christian Science denies the existence of moral mind and all its effects, including suggestion or mesmerism. To use Mrs. Eddy's own words, 'All consciousness is Mind, and Mind is God. Hence there is but one Mind; and that one is infinite good, supplying all Mind by the reflection, not the subdivision, of God. Whatever else claims to be mind, or consciousness, is untrue" (Retrospections and Introspection).

"Christian Science is efficacious whether the individual has faith or not. In cases without number Christian Science is appealed to as a last resort, and, after many failures to find help elsewhere, the faith of the individual is established only after he has been healed. In other words, the mortal or human mind is not a factor in Christian Science healing. As stated in Science and Healing, p. 231, 'If God heals not the sick, they are not healed, for no lesser power equals the infinite All-power; but God, Truth, Life, does heal the sick through the prayer of the righteous.'"

Arraignment of Modern Industrialism

For Joseph Conrad's "Nostromo" is an arraignment of modern industrialism. I shall not go into the detail of a complete review, for "Nostromo" is not a new book and it has created so great a stir in the breasts of critics that we may rather defer to them for extended opinion. But every one who is genuinely interested in novels per se should read the volume. It breathes an air of greatness, of completeness artistically and thoughtfully, that whispers a survival for it above the heads of most of its contemporaries. With the fine dignity and aesthetic care of Mr. Conrad's best effort, "Nostromo" challenges one's admiration and commands one's earnest thought. Its theme suggests the conclusion that modern commercialism which buys cheap and sells dear not only kills romance and crushes individuals, but it leaves communities as bad or worse than it found them and its patronage of the arts, humanities and religion is but a sop to the Cerberus of sentimentalism which must be satisfied before an Anglo-Saxon can feel content. Once this [illegible] *of sentimentalism is secure Mr. Conrad has dis*covered that single-eyed and with no room for understanding, pity, or remorse, the Anglo-Saxon financier proceeds to business ventures of world staggering proportions and returns, and Mr. Conrad seems further to believe that there is a possibility of no great uncertainty that the Anglo-Saxons will be the commercial dictators of the world. But at what a price! The only hope for the next generation would seem to lie in some of the many organizations to which Nostromo belonged. What those organizations were and their exact import Mr. Conrad does not clearly define.

County Treasurer Taylor Indicted

Based upon investigation by the county grand jury and upon the testimony of F. E. Woods, accountant; Miss Anna Johnson, deputy auditor; E. W. Palmtag and C. W Cahoon, Salinas bankers, and C. B. Rosendale, attorney, an indictment containing four counts, among them embezzlement, has been found against County Treasurer James Taylor.

A complete audit of all records and transactions of the county treasurer's office during the entire incumbency of James Taylor, covering a period of twenty years or more, has been ordered by the board of supervisors.

Insect Pests Dislike Soot.

Foliage in London or any place where there is much soot is usually fairly free from insect pests.

Carmel Pioneer Dies

The death of Charles Berwick, pioneer of Carmel, whose home was near the Paradise Park tract, occurred at the county hospital last Sunday. Deceased was a native of England, aged 85 years. Infirmities incident to old age was the cause of death. Edward Berwick, a brother, resides at Pacific Grove. His wife passed away about a year ago.

Carmel Gets Nothing

The sum of $1500 has been appropriated by the board of supervisors from the advertising fund and apportioned among the several chambers of commerce to be used in advertising the resources of the county. Pacific Grove, Monterey, Salinas and King City get $300 each, with Soledad and Pajaro $150 each.

Pine Cone's Log of Literature & Art

We of the United States have grown a bit weary of the invasion of the American stage by Orientals arriving by way of Europe, but for the first time in the history of the theatre, the Oriental has sent direct to us, across 7,000 miles of the Pacific, a company of its own players, to present not problem plays, or sex drama, but historical productions, comedies from the days of Confucius, and the love stories of the water-lily and the dragon-fly, the cherry-blossom and the rose, the sun and the moon—those tales on which the myths and the stories of the ages are based. The company is Chinese, the first of its kind to leave China for the New World, and its leading [illegible] is a 16-year-old girl.

The earliest unpublished manuscript of Rudyard Kipling, one which he had forgotten existed, has been offered for sale in London, and the highest bidder so far is the author himself. The manuscript contains 12 pages and is entitled "At the Pit's Mouth: Personal Recollections of Duncan Parreness. Translated from the Diary of R. K.," and is valued by the owners at 800 pounds sterling. It was wirtten in 1884, while Kipling was a young journalist in India.

The story is a satire on Anglo-Indian society, and tells of a man's love for a married woman. One of the "Wee Willie Winkle" stories of the same author has same title, "At the Pit's Mouth," but except for the same locality, the resemblance to this early manuscript ends.

Mr. Kilping, when informed that the manuscript had been purchased by the dealers at first doubted its authenticity, but on examination he declared the work genuine, although he only faintly remembered incidents connected with it.

The following extract is from a half-column article in the Paris edition of the New York Herald:

"Few artists of conservative tendencies have attracted so much attention in Paris during the past year as Mr. William P. Silva. Not only did he have the distinction of being one of the three Americans to receive an honorable mention in the painting section of the Salon des Artistes Francais, but his exposition at the Simonson Gallery was one of the most successful individual shows of the season."

The spirit of Sydney Porter, "O. Henry" is not dead. At the request of his daughter, $50, received by her for a magazine story about her father, was distributed to the strays and derelicts in downtown New York's parks and lodging houses. Most of the money was given to guests of the Washington House and the Olive Tree Inn on Second avenue.

Luther Burbank, plant wizard, regards the improvement of mankind as a greater work than the improvement of plant species. "I hope that the same laws, as far as practicable, which I have discovered and demonstrated in plant life, will be applied to the improvement of human life," he states. Although immersed in important experiments, Burbank finds time for boy scout affairs in his home town of Santa Rosa. His interest in the scout movement for the improvement of the growing boy, is a thoughtful tribute to the work of the organization.

Maude Adams whose retirement from the stage has been the talk of Broadway for months, has virtually disappeared so far as former friends in theaterdom are concerned. Her failure to appear at the anniversary dinner at the Empire recently is said to be confirmation of the statement that she is retiring from acting for good. Following this, it was found that none of her former theatrical friends had heard from her in months and that none knew her present address.

Broadway had not believed that the famous actress' announcement of her retirement meant a permanent one.

A Scollardly Symphony

By the courtesy of the author and the New York Herald, the Pine Cone is enabled to publish another interesting group of verses by Clinton Scollard, at present sojourning in Carmel.

SILHOUETTES OF THE PACIFIC

Dawn

Stern and stark Point Lobos
Looms up in the dawning's rose,
While a violet curve to the leeward
The Point of the Cypress shows.

And far in the depths of the distance,
Beyond where the ocean gleams,
Is a land of tall pagodas
I shall only see in dreams.

Noon

A sheet of sapphire without stain,
Burnished with floods of amber light,
That seems an undulating plain
Reaching into the infinite.

This scene that stirs the soul to awe,
Sailless as far as eye may ken,
Is like the one Balboa saw
Of old in distant Darien.

Eventide

Out of the sunset streamers,
Weird as a dream may be,
Viewed through the lens of Fancy,
What are the barques I see?

Junks with their bales of Hyson
Cleaving the even-glow,
Tacking in from China
And the mouths of the Hoangho!

CARMEL INTAGLIOS

A Flight of Gulls

Clouds about the crests of Santa Lucia,
Gusty clouds of amethyst and purple,
And against the clouds a flight of seagulls—
White, or glinting with the sheen of silver—
Eddying, gyring, wheeling, circling, swirling,
Like gigantic snowflakes.

Over Night

Over night—and out of sleeping
Manzanita blossoms spring;
Sudden mushrooms' domes are peeping
In a fairy ring.

Over night the swift transmuting
Of the gray to rose and fawn;
From the silence bluebirds fluting—
Fluting in the dawn.

Over night—and opal gleaming
Lifted reeds are dew-empearled;
Out of darkness, out of dreaming,
Wakens the whole world.

Broom

Tiny little balls of bloom,
That's the broom!—
Golden at the peer of dawn,
Golden at the noon,
Golden when the night has gone
Underneath the moon;
Golden in the gloom—
That's the broom!

Sun or shadow, shine or shower,
Why not wear through every hour,
The demeanor of the flower?

MOON SONGS FROM THE PACIFIC

Before Moonrise

The pallid gold of the unrisen moon
Creeps up the east, and brightens more and more;
A low surf song drifts inland from the shore
Over a dim sand dune.

Above, upon a bare brown hill slope, one
Tall, shapely, live oak stands, and seems to turn
Eastward, and, raptured, toward the moonrise yearn
Like young Endymion.

Moonrise

The sun went down, a barque of fire,
On the wide bosom of the west;
The sea, with chords of vague unrest,
Murmured as does a mighty lyre.

O'er Mount Fremont far, far away,
While the long trade winds seemed to swoon,
Uprose the great pomegranate moon
Above the bay of Monterey.

High Moon

The moon is high above the pines,
And o'er the ancient cypresses;
How still it is! Yet one divines
The ceaseless undersong of seas.

Deep, dense and dark the shadows are,
But in the open spaces, lo,
Without a blot to stain or mar
There seem to lie white pools of snow!

IMPRESSIONS AT CARMEL

A Meadow Lark Sang

A meadow lark sang at the drooping of dusk;
Its silvery notes with the sea seemed in tune,
And out of a cloud like a blade from its sheath
Night drew the new moon.

Then quenched in the dark was the lilt of the lark;
The blade of the new moon was sheathed in the sea,
But the lips of the waves murmured still to the stars,
Impassionately.

A Gray Day

Today the sea was gray beyond the dunes;
Above the sky was gray;
Hushed were the meadow lark's melodious tunes
That gladdened the long azure afternoons;
Only the gulls' cries drifted o'er the bay,
Only the gulls' cries and the sway and sweep
Of surges on the shore;
Only the gulls' cries and the vast gray deep
Complaining that it may not rest or sleep
Forever—ever more!

Miss Laura A. Dierssen has as guest her mother from San Francisco.

Mrs. Tom Tisdale and her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Byrant and son, have apartments at El Monte Verdi for a week or ten days.

Carmel residents attending the State University at Berkeley include Franklyn Murphy, Marion and Elizabeth Hooper, and Tom Gillett.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Williams have rented the Tilton cottage on Casanova st., near Ocean avenue, where Mrs. Williams intends to open a convalescent and rest home.

Mrs. Florence Shiron Brown, who is wintering in San Francisco arrived in Carmel last week. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Blanche Furr, who is recuperating from a recent illness.

All that remains now, so that Ocean avenue may be ready for traffic is for the concrete to thoroughly dry and harden. Contractor Ruthven will soon have his workmen on the north Monte Verdi job.

E. R. Nash of the Monterey Electric Shop has installed on the grounds of Margaret Stewart home, south of the city limits, an underground wiring system to a pond where colored bulbs will gleam in the water.

The trial of Judge W. H. Chadney of Monterey, recently indicted by the Grand Jury, is set for Tuesday March 6. He will plead "not guilty" and will be defended by Argyll Campbell. Sensational disclosures are probable.

Costume-making for the colonial costume dance at Pine Inn on Washington's birthday is one of the chief occupations of a number of Carmel ladies just now. Several men are planning to attend in costume similar to that being worn by Ambassador George Harvey on state occasions—knee breeches, lace cuffs, gold buckles, 'n everything.

Garbage Disposal is No Longer Problem

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel board of trustees was held last Tuesday evening with a full board present.

The best news for Carmelites will be that arrangements have been made to collect and dispose of garbage. A dump has been secured on the Oliver land on the coast road, and one Rodriguez has been engaged as garbage collector with a bonus from the city of $25 per month.

The test having proved satisfactory in every way, the Luverne fire engine has been accepted by the city and will be housed in a garage on Lincoln street, near Ocean avenue.

After some discussion, to the city planning commission was referred the request of Paul Flanders to close Carpenter street, near the Carnegie Institution property, so that the street will not run through the Flanders property.

Wild Flower Preservation Urged

The usual meeting of the Carmel Boys' Club was held on Wednesday evening with a large and enthusiastic attendance.

The preservation of wild flowers was brought up, and the boys were urged to examine the flowers, study forms and colors, the structure and texture, and then realize how much beauty is being wantonly destroyed by unthinking persons. If those gathering flowers would pluck only what they need and not gather recklessly, the time of final disappearance is far distant.
